SEWER PROJECT READY FOR WPA CONSIDERATION

The Committee from the Chamber of Commerce having in charge the securing of pledges to a common fund for the purpose of establishing a sewer system for the business section of Hondo called the pledgers together in a meeting at the Public Service Company's office on Thursday night of last week. The committee reported pledges of something over four thousand dollars. It having been tentatively understood that this amount would be sufficient to secure from the WPA enough additional funds to construct the system complete with chemical plant, the pledges were placed in the hands of Comptroller A. Fred A. Bader, who, with the assistance of the Commissioners' Court, is to seek the approval of the WPA for the project.

The plan as far as developed is for a sewer pipe line to start at the western extremity of the first block north of the railroad track and west of Bandera Avenue and extend thence eastward down the alley some three or four blocks. Here it will turn south across the railroad and highway and extend to the center of the first block south of the railroad track. Here it will unite with an extension coming down the alley from a point west equal-distance with the north wing, and proceed eastward down that alley to the south, and to the disposal plant, grounds for which have been donated for that purpose by Col. W.
B. Odem. This route may be changed somewhat, but the primary purpose to serve the congested business section of the town will be achieved.

Over a year ago a much more extensive system was considered, and one that contemplated the sale of service bonds for its construction, but the war abroad and the depression at home having destroyed all demand for service bonds the plan was dropped. The urgent need of the area to be served caused the less ambitious plan to be attempted.

Somewhere in France—1940

By Lewis, Milwaukee Journal

TEARS ARE NOT ENOUGH

They came out of The Netherlands, from Belgium, fled down from Luxemburg and out of northern France. For two days it rained, a cold drizzle that slanted into the gust. And the dust became mud.
And this drove them in their flight, cake the wheels of their carts, seeped through the shoes of those on foot.

There were five million of them.
Newsmen who watched their flight wrote of a "river of misery". These people were not strong, because the strong had stayed to fight for their homes. They were women, children and the aged.

They looked furtively over their shoulders for a last glimpse. Those who were there remembered how the low-hanging clouds reflected the flash of artillery-fire into their tormented faces. At night they took to the woods and attempted to doze in wet, makeshift shelters. And because the rumble of guns made it impossible to sleep or even rest, they moved on.

Coming up from the south were troops advancing to join against the spenny. So they took to one side of the road, crowding into the ditch where horses in their traces lay exhausted and where automobiles lay abandoned with empty fuel tanks.

The next day was clear, menac-ingly clear, and the soldiers kept looking to the sky. And that which they feared happened. At first it was a distant hum. Then the small black dots in the sky grew larger and before they knew it these planes swept down upon them to strafe with machine-gun-fire the northbound troops, but there was no use in screaming to the sky that they bore no arms, that they wanted no part of this war.

They trod on, through Tours, Poitiers, Limoges, Vichy, on to Bourges and to Nevers. And by that time they saw this flag. It was a red cross on a clean field of white. Many went. They were so hungry, tired and harassed they could not eat.
Their feet were swollen and when the last shred of stockings was removed, their feet were bathed in clean water. They flung themselves upon cots and slept for the first time to heal their tired bodies.

There was an old man who died, and there was a mother who clutch-ed her dead child while her soul bled with grief. There were some who had brought money, but they, too, were hungry because in their flight there had been no food for their money to buy.

The disheartening plight of these millions has deeply moved the heart of every American. Yet we cannot be content with mere sympathies.
The cry for food and clothing and for clean surgical dressings to bind wounds cannot be answered with la-ments. Tears are not enough.

Our thankfulness for peace and security must be translated into tangible assistance. We can do this through the American Red Cross.

Already millions of American dollars have purchased Red Cross mercy supplies that have been needed so urgently in Finland, Poland and other war-stricken nations. This greater need that grows hourly in France must be met with greater response.
And remember that this response must be prompt and generous.

Give what you can and give quickly through the Red Cross. Your contribution, large or small, whatever you can afford, is vital in answering this challenge.

SALESMANSHIP

By Clayton Rand

* A Washington, D. C., ice box salesman made a record by unloading a refrigerator on an Eskimo, in exchange for fifty silver dollars and a hundred dollars worth of furs, ivory and heirlooms.

* The Eskimo has carried it with him to the Arctic and says he intends to pack its shelves with reindeer meat, whale blubber,
"squawberry" pie and seal oil.
That ought to strike a match under many a salesman whose enthusiasm needs rekindling—who thinks we have reached the point of saturation in household

THE "TAX RACKET"

A recent survey, reported to be among the most accurate ever made, concerned the proportion of income paid in taxes by a typical workman earning $20 a week. The survey found that $4 of this modest wage went to the tax collector.

That $4 was not paid directly, of course—it is probable that the average worker doesn't know he is taxed at all. He isn't concerned with income tax blanks and the other myriad and involved tax reports required by government of those in higher income brackets. His $4 was paid indirectly, throughout the entire week.
High taxes make a loaf of bread cost a penny more than it would otherwise, a pair of shoes cost fifty cents more, a ticket to a movie a dime more, the monthly electric bill sixty cents more. So it goes, down the endless list of purchases and payments we all make. The tax collecor is always at your elbow—a highly expensive if unseen companion.

And here is the living proof of the fact that the real burden of taxation falls more heavily on the man of small means than the man of large.
Four dollars a week taken out of a $20 paycheck means that this typical worker's family must go without needed clothes, medical attention, entertainment, etc. It means less money for insurance or savings. It means poorer housing, poorer meals.

We've heard much of that proportion of the population which is "ill fed, ill housed, and ill clothed."

What we don't hear often enough is that the burden of debt and taxation is largely responsible for that, and in two ways. First, it takes a percentage of the small wage ear-ner's income which he obviously cannot afford if he is to maintain a decent standard of living. Second, it deprives him of jobs and opportunities and the chance for better pay.
An overtaxed business doesn't expand and hire more men. Nor, when it is being drained to the limit by government, can it increase wages.

So the "little man" is getting it in the neck—as a result of those suc-cided fiscal policies pursued by a group of politicians who weep copious crocodile tears on behalf of the people.
It's time the "little man" woke up to the racket. —Industrial News Review.

HOME-TOWN RECIPROCITY

From a big city businessman comes this bit of timely advice:

Sales success is based not alone upon honesty, commercial acumen, aggressiveness, analytical ability, personality and approach. All these qualities play their part in modern salesmanship. But the sales that repeat for you are based upon the all-important factor called Fair Dealing.

Fair Dealing and reciprocity are synonymous. Your community and its environs supply the business that makes it possible for you to succeed.
It is only just and right that you reciprocate for the consideration your community shows you by patronizing home-town business enterprises.

After all, it is the citizens of your community who make it possible for your wife to have clothes; for your children to attend schools; for you to have a roof over your head; for bread and butter and milk and meat and eggs and delicacies to grace your table. Certainly, you are under no obligation to take your money a hundred miles away from your home town where you are not known, nor even appreciated. You might save a

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

The opinions here expressed are Mr. Preston's own and not necessarily those of this paper.—M. E.

More and more Washingtonians are being impressed by the experiences of France and England which show so graphically the dire results of following idealistic policies too long.

Americans, Washingtonians say, are getting realistic about national defense. They want, and intend to get, airplanes and ships and guns and trained men to make the country invulnerable to attack by a foreign aggressor.

But the thing that worries some Washingtonians is this:

France and England have known since about 1935, if not earlier, that they should be preparing for a supreme effort to defend life and liberty. Had they gone to work full speed then, with all groups cooperating to the fullest extent, they would have been well prepared when the test came.

Yet, these commentators add, France and England had to preserve their "social gains"—to the last ditch. France, for example, under a Socialistic leadership thought that Frenchmen were good enough to work only 30 hours a week yet still produce the tanks and armored cars and munitions they needed.

So a 30-hour-week was the French legal standard. They stuck to it until it became evident that idealism must be replaced by realism. Then it was too late. They could not, in the short time remaining, build the machinery necessary to defend their nation.

—WSS—

It isn't that these Washington commentators want to "sacrifice" all social gains by wiping them off the statute books. They believe America can still meet its demands, without that kind of "sacrifice." But they believe that some of them could be eased a bit under the circumstances.

What good are these gains, these commentators ask, when a man's home is destroyed by a bomb, when he is shot down by a cannon fired from a tank, and when his wife and children flee down a highway inferno to an unknown future?

What good does it do a dying man to remember that he once got double pay for working over 40 hours a week? And what comfort, they continue, is it to a former leader of the French nation who sees his people ground under mechanical superiority to remember that he maintained all "social gains" to the end?

There are many reasons for discussion of these questions. One, which brings the point home to Washington, is the fact that despite a demand from the public, from the House of Representatives, and from one important labor organization, a few Senators are still trying to block Wagner Act amendments.

The Wagner Act has been on the books about five years. It hasn't restored industrial peace as it was supposed to do. The latest official report shows that in a single week the Labor Department's conciliation service was called upon in labor disputes involving 7,918 workers in key defense industries.

—WSS—

As these Washingtonians put it the establishment of legal protection for collective bargaining was a social gain which should not be wiped out. But should collective bargaining be encouraged to the point that a few agitators, and perhaps even aliens, can make continually increasing demands for higher wages and shorter hours until rearmament is crippled?

Another factor is that Congress is now becoming conscious of the cost of things. It is working on a billion dollar tax bill. It is getting afraid that next March when the time comes to pay the heavier income taxes, people won't even like the phrase "super-tax" as much as they do now.

Consequently, they wonder if steps shouldn't be taken to hold down the cost of the defense program. They recognize that by far the greater portion of the cost of airplanes and tanks and the like is for labor. They hope that the present flurry of strikes is no indication of what will follow. If it is, they say, then something drastic might have to be done.

In the meanwhile, many insist that such an eventuality might be forestalled if the Smith bill amending the Wagner Act, which passed the House by a two-to-one majority, is promptly passed the Senate.

The first recorded cattle brand in Texas was that of Don Nicholas Saez, resident of Real de Las Sabanas between 1748 and 1750.

AL RIGHTS

By J. E. Jones

The Bill of Rights laid down the sound principle that: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

Within recent years the Federal Government has turned the tables on the States, and the National Government tells the 48 State Capitals how to behave, and fit themselves into the blueprints of "centralized government."

So when you read about the laws enacted by different States that interfere with each other you can trace the reasons straight back to Washington, where laws and plans of government have undergone basic changes within recent years. The States that have received grants of Government aid several times more than their own payments of State taxes to the Federal Government have shown an overly-gratified appreciation—inasmuch as the principle has been to give States only what they were entitled to receive. Then again when you analyze the underlying reasons why rich States with great taxable property "horn in" on Federal loans for their city improvements, bridges and housing plans—for instance New York City—you will find that their excuse is that they "want to get even with the Government" for the excess averages of State taxes they have been paying.

Right now the simple old definition of interstate and intrastate commerce is cockeyed because Federal control of political and economic conditions has upset all the old plans of State Governments. So when the States are detected raising state-barriers for their own benefit and to the detriment of other States, the chances are that those same States are struggling under so many top-heavy regulations, and so much control from the Federal Government, that they are trying to "beat the devil around the bush" and "pull their chests out of the fire" before the big Government at Washington lays more restrictions on their affairs.

The fact that Florida and California have citrus-fruit wars, and that a number of States let contracts to their own citizens and restrict them to buy supplies entirely within the State, is only an indirect method by which the States are struggling to reserve some self-government for themselves.

It is not many years ago that the States controlled their own corporations and regulated their own public utilities and small businesses and joined together to build up and manage their own banking interests. In the face of the fact that Washington now indicts these State corporations as monopolies, and controls the local banks has displeased citizens of States and is largely responsible for the erection of discriminatory trade barriers. It seems to be a method of defending themselves against the centralization of Government in Washington.

This peeves Federal authority from which has come a challenge of whether we shall have one Government or "48 kingdoms" in the United States. The Bill of Rights and the Federal Constitution have not become out-moded.

The remedy for trade barriers within different States will not be found until the Federal Government gets down off its high-horse and recognizes the fact that States from Maine to California, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico are getting the short end of Constitutional Government. In other words, State rights must be re-asserted in our Nation so positively that the Federal Government will keep within its own Constitutional rights.

OUR MONTHLY MEDITATION

And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the Son of Jona, thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, A stone. John 1: 42.

What's in a name? Often very little. Picked up at random, for the sake of sound or novelty or rarity or a favorite friend or performer, for a little reverie or romance of the past. Often that way. And often the meaning of it is hard to discover, and if discoverable, it's often surprisingly meaningless, fortunately unknown to the bearer. Indian chiefs took on a new name in later life, mostly based on a deed of valor or a characteristic physical endowment that made them outstanding. Biblical names, almost invariably, convey a meaning of ethical or religious valuation. They were safeguarded as a sacred possession and, frequently, became a source of constant encouragement and ambition, giving the bearer's life a definite slant and direction. —In three known instances God changed the names of individuals (men), in the case of Abraham, Jacob and Solomon. And their new names were deeply significant. Likewise Christ gave new names to three of his disciples. James and John He surnamed Boanerges, the sons of thunder; Peter, according to our text, was the new name for Simon, the son of Jona. He was brought to Jesus by Andrew, his brother, in the joy of his heart, after his momentous hours with the Messiah. Seemingly without formal introduction and family details, the Lord recognized him and saluted him with his given name, Simon. Whence His knowledge? Psychic guesswork? Had He been waiting for him? Why the change of the name? Simon was not a bad name. It meant one who sees, who has a fast mental grasp of something, who is keenly receptive of outside impressions, one who catches on quickly. The name was no misnomer, no false front. Only too often we find him exercising and applying that characteristic qualification in later life, outrunning all other disciples therein, and coupling it with a quick and outspoken ver-

"HAUNTED GOLD"—Friday and Saturday, with handsome John Wayne heading a large cast. Spooks or racketeers haunt a deserted gold mine, and romance and action are added to the thrills and chills.

"NINOTCHKA"—Sunday and Monday, a comedy drama with a notable cast including Greta Garbo, Melvyn Douglas, Ina Claire, Bela Lugosi, Sig Rumann, Felix Iversart, and Alexander Granach. The film satirizes the life and love of the Russians Soviets, with Greta Garbo in her first sophisticated comedy role.

"JOHNNY APOLLO"—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with Tyrone Power and Dorothy Lamour heading a notable cast including Edward Arnold, Lloyd Nolan, Charley Grapewin and Lionel Atwill. Robert Cain, broker, is exposed for embezzling and sent to jail. His son adopts the name, "Johnny Apollo" to conceal his identity and takes up a life of crime to obtain money to buy his father's parole. The film reveals how the father and son, after many illuminating experiences, learn that crime does not pay.

satility, and nearly always touching upon the main point at issue. —Why now, Thou shalt be called Cephas (a stone)? An old teacher used to greet his children in school, "Good morning, ye farmers and craftsmen and businessmen, aldermen, mayors, scientists and generals," etc. By dint of talent, effort and opportunity, he conjectured, his pupils might become one or the other in the course of time. Did Jesus merely conjecture, hope and wish for something in the future of Peter? Did He diagnose his new developments? Did He infiltrate new graces and new powers in his present make-up, into his character? Did He mean to have him stand for and represent something particular and outstanding in his future service? Indeed, Jesus often demonstrated his ability to penetrate the interior of man or woman. He knew what was in man, his potentialities, his future possibilities, his serviceableness for the kingdom of God and thus for mankind at large. —How irksome and often disappointing is the task for a big concern to get the proper office crew, for the war department to find the efficient generals, for the president to hit upon the right co-operative men for his cabinet! How fast do we underestimate or overestimate our acquaintances, the men in the public eye, the distinguished officials that make or remake history, because of prejudice or lack of proper balance in judgment! With unerring certainty and calm reflection Jesus chose His disciples, chose Paul, from a stratum of society that we never would have thought of. Nor was He mistaken in giving Simon his surname Peter, a rock. Something rugged, firm, fundamental and solid in the ravages of time and the corroding influence of adverse human opinions and haphazard attacks upon his Christian stand and service in later years. In the crude block of marble, the sculptor of genius already sees the statue of his mind; more so, Christ sees beforehand the capabilities, the usefulness of the

LA COSTE LEDGERETS

The LaCoste Ledger. Miss Faustina Christilles of LaCoste returned home last Thursday, June 20, from St. Mary's University Educational Tour which took her to the World's Fair in New York and other places of interest in the East. She has acclaimed the tour almost too much to tell about. Every minute was intensely interesting.

YOUNG STUDENTS HONORED WITH MEXICAN DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. U. B. Kempf of Castroville entertained with a delicious Mexican dinner at their home Monday evening, June 24, with Roy Rihn of LaCoste and Charles Smith of Texarkana, Arkansas, as honor guests. After the delicious meal had been served and thoroughly enjoyed, the group spent the remainder of the evening in conversation. Those present were the honorees, Roy Rihn and Charles Smith, Gerald Bohme of Castroville, California, Dignam of Los Angeles, California, Mrs. Fred Faust, her son, Rev. Claude Faust, and her daughter, Josephine, and Victor Berger of San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rihn and daughters, Doris and Tessie, of LaCoste, E. J. Conrad of Castroville and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. U. B. Kempf and children.

REUMPEL-SCHUCHART WEDDING SOLEMNIZED

The Saint Louis Catholic Church of Castroville was the scene of one of the most beautiful weddings of the season at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 18, 1940, when Miss Hazel Schuchart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Schuchart of Rio Medina, became the bride of Daniel Reumpel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reumpel of San Antonio. Very Rev. Dean J. Lenzen celebrating the nuptial mass. The altar was decorated with zinnias and lace fern, while two floral baskets with zinnias marked the entrance of the sanctuary. The bridal party entered church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, forming a point led by Ernest Schuchart, followed by Ward Bohme, Lloyd Schuchart, Harold Galm, and Frank Heubner. The bridesmaids, forming a second point, led by Fay Schuchart, followed by Doris Mechler, Leora Bohme, Dahlis Haby, and Melba Wurzbach. The groom's bridesmaids were Georgia Mae Bohme and Florence Ehrler. The maid of honor, Luell Bohme, led the third point, followed by the matrons of honor, Mrs. Silva Haby and Mrs. Daniel Keller; ring bearer, Ray Haby, and flower girls, Frances Bohme and Helen Marie Schuchart. The bride entered with her father and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Manuel Reumpel, twin brother of the groom.

The bride was lovely in white embroidered organdy which was fashioned on princess lines with a short train, heart-shaped neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves forming a point on her hand. Her long veil formed a bow which was caught with orange blossoms in the center. Her only jewelry was a necklace fifty-five years old which was a gift to her grandmother on her wedding day. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids and junior bridesmaids wore simple dresses of white organdy with large circular skirts and heart-shaped necklines, a black velvet ribbon tie in a bow at the waist. They wore black and white cameo necklaces, shasta daisies in their hair, and carried hat-shaped baskets on their arm which were filled with shasta daisies. The matrons of honor wore dresses on the same line with boleros of white embroidered organdy. Flower girls wore short dresses of white organdy with black velvet ribbon at the waist, carrying white metal baskets of rose petals. The maid of honor wore a dress along similar lines of the bridesmaids.

After the ceremony an all day reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Reumpel left on a trip to Colorado and other points of interest.

DEVINE NEWSLETS.

The Devine News. MAY CLOSE SEWING ROOMS IN COUNTY.

The WPA women of Devine, who are dependent upon a daily stipend for work in the WPA sewing rooms at Devine, and in Hondo, we understand, are very much disturbed over the prospects of these sewing rooms being closed, and these women thrown out of work. It seems that the county is financially embarrassed and cannot raise its part of the money to match the Federal funds and we stand to lose $15. or $0. for every $4 or $5 we put up. It is to be hoped that some way may be managed to keep the work going, until this fiscal year is over; and a new set up, or more finances may be coming in.

Mrs. J. A. Eames and sister, Mrs. Susie Davis, of Bandera and Medina City, accompanied by Mrs. R. R. Rodus were pleasant visitors at our office, Tuesday. The Bandera ladies were born and reared in and near Devine, daughters of W. H. H. Davis, one of Devine's first merchants.

Miss Margaret Lurene Blackaller, daughter of Mrs. James Edgar Blackaller of Pearsall, became the bride of Frank William Brady of San Antonio, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Brady of this city, in a ceremony at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the First Methodist Church with Rev. Kermit Gibbons officiating.

The church was decorated with ivory baskets of white gladioli and Shasta daisies with woodwardia palms and plumosa ferns as a background. The altar rails were entwined with fern and white confederate jasmine. Cathedral tapers burned in seven-branched candelabra at either side of the altar which was banked with fern and gypsophila.

Mrs. Jessie K. Mattox played "At Dawning", "Ave Maria", and "Liebestraum" before the ceremony and she accompanied Miss Bess Brown of Austin, who sang "Because". Mrs. Mattox also played the traditional wedding marches.

Hardy Ratcliff, Bobby Sanders, both of Pearsall, and Vernon Haynes of San Antonio, were the ushers. Groomsman were John Camp Jr., Frank Prassel, Jesse Oppenheimer and Kent Hoester, all of San Antonio. Jon Tyner of Pearsall was best man. Mrs. Vernon Haynes lit the candles just before the ceremony began.

The bridesmaids were Mesdames Frank Prassel, John Camp Jr., George Beaver Jr., and Miss Dorothy Waitz.

Mrs. Fritz Sorrell of Pearsall was matron of honor and Miss Claire Blackaller of Pearsall, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

Little Miss Diana Stout and Miss Dorothy Lea Dexter were the flower girls, and Charles Malcolm Griffin was the ring bearer.

The bride wore white foam marquisette, over satin. The bodice was shirred and tight-fitting and had a flattering off-the-shoulder neckline, edged in Chantilly lace, the sleeves were full and puffed, and the wide full skirt fell in beautiful swirls of the marquisette and extended at the back into a train of the marquisette over the satin train of the undergown. The bride's veil was a mist of white illusion, cascading from a draped turban of shirred marquisette, arranged in front as a transparent face veil and falling at the back to fingertip length. She wore elbow gloves of shirred marquisette extending over her hands in points and having little satin covered buttons, and she carried a purple throatie alba orchid with showers of valley lilies and stephanotis.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother in Pearsall. The house was adorned with baskets of white gladioli and ferns, and tapers burned throughout the house in antique candelabra.

IN DAYS OF OLD

In days of old, when knights were bold,
As we have heard it said
The ladies fair would often care
And take a knight to wed.

In days of old, when knights were few,
There never is a chance;
The ladies fair no longer care,
They take a knight to dance.

R. E. A. NEWS FLASH

The information we have been awaiting for such a long time has finally arrived.

The Medina Electric Cooperative, Inc., Hondo, Texas, this week received a telegram from Senator Tom Connally, advising that the sum of $72,000 from the 1941 fiscal funds had been allotted for the construction of a rural electrification line in its
"B" Project area.

This "B" Project consists of the district below the town of Biry, extends toward Chacon Lake, and includes the Medina Irrigation District.

The J. W. Beretta Engineers, Inc., are at the present time making a final survey in this area, checking all signed members and easements.
Within a very short period of time stakeing proceedings will begin, and after that the construction of the lines will actually start.

There will be a constant hum of activity—brush being cleared, holes dug, poles going up, wire being strung—in fact, before you know what it is all about, the electricity will be here for all of us. Let's all do everything within our power to cooperate with the Cooperative in completing the necessary steps, and be ready for the service when it is made available.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
COUNTY OF MEDINA.
IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF ME-DINA COUNTY, TEXAS, 38th JU-DICIAL DISTRICT, JUNE TERM 1940.

On this the 18th day of June, A.
D. 1940, it being announced in Open Court that the Honorable Edmund de Montel, a member of the Bar of Medina County, had departed this life since the last preceding term of this Court, and the Court, having heard and granted the request of the Bar of Medina County to present and file for record a brief history of the life of the deceased, together with resolutions of respect to his memory and service, appointed the members of the Bar of Medina County as a Committee of the Whole to draft and present the observations by it desired; all of which appears as follows:

EDMUND de MONTEL

son of Charles and Justine Pingent de Montel, was born at Castrovilla, Medina County, Texas, December 20, 1854, and died at his home in Hondo on February 11, 1940, at the age of eighty-five years. He was married to Miss Fannie Hutzel January 7, 1885, who, with their three sons and two daughters, survive him. Graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Laws from Washington and Lee University, he immediately established a law office at the town of his birth and continued in the uninterrupted practice of his profession until a short time prior to his death, when he voluntarily retired. His first appearance in the District Court of Medina County was entered in cause No.
562 on its docket, of date April 21, 1882. He was variously associated with Leslie Thompson, Esq., and George W. Powell, Esq., from 1882 to 1890, and during the latter year formed a partnership with the late Leroy Denman (Sr.) and Thos. H.
Franklin, under the firm name of Denman, Franklin & de Montel with offices in San Antonio and Castro-ville, which continued until 1900.
He was a partner of W. J. Harper, deceased, for a short time. In the meantime the office was removed from Castrovilla to Hondo, the new County Seat of Medina County, in November 1892. In 1904 he was joined by D. H. Fly and formed the firm of de Montel & Fly which endured without interruption until the death of the senior partner. Never an aspirant to or holder of appointment or elective office of emolument, yet throughout a long and useful life, he enjoyed a place of highest privilege and responsibility in the life of the people of his home, and surrounding counties, serving in many positions of social and public welfare, and fulfilled the attributes of nobility which by right of birth were truly his own. Accordingly

WHEREAS, in the death of the Honorable Edmund de Montel, the Bar of Medina County and the Legal Profession of Texas have lost a valued and respected member and associate, the people at large an able and conscientious advocate, and his family a devoted husband and father; now therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, by the Bar of Medina County, that it hereby acknowledge its sense of profound loss and sorrow in the departure of Honorable Edmund de Montel to enter his appearance before the Highest of all Courts; of its pause in deep concern that its broken ranks are again to be levelled, and that a vacancy exists which is not to be filled;
of its desire to perpetuate the esteem in which it holds, and shall ever hold, the fine qualities of his life and service, and the memory of his companionship, his kindness and unvarying chivalry; that it desires, hereby, to convey to the bereaved widow and children a deep and abiding assurance of its sympathy in their distress, adding the hope that the Infinite Judge shall restore their hearts in the realization that a richer fulfillment awaits all in the life beyond;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that recommendation be, and is hereby, made to the Court that these observations be spread upon the minutes of this Court, and that a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of the deceased.

H. E. HAASS,
D. H. FLY,

R. J. NOONAN,

ARTHUR H. ROTHE,

FRANK X. VANCE,

JOE E. BRISCOE,

DAVID C. BROWN.

The foregoing having been submitted in open court on this the 27th day of June, A. D. 1940, and the Court, having heard and considered the same; it is ordered by the court that the same be and they are hereby approved, and that said resolutions, together with the preamble thereto and this order be spread upon the minutes of this court on a page thereof set apart for that purpose; it is further ordered that the Clerk of this Court transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased;
and, on motion of the Committee, it is the further order of the Court, that the Court do now rise and stand adjourned for the day in respect to and in memory of the Honorable Edmund de Montel, deceased.

K. K. WOODLEY,
Judge,

38th Judicial District of Texas.

Rain amounting to 1.82 inches fell here Tuesday evening about 8:00 o'clock. The rain was accompanied by considerable wind and some hail and falling so rapidly—in about thirty minutes—packed the ground considerably. This rain will help the corn that's not too far matured to fill out and make heavier grain.
Growers of broomcorn ready to harvest would have preferred not to have the rain.

37% for all states. On the Secondary Federal Aid Program, Texas is 13th, with 22% not under contract. The nation as a whole has 49% not contracted. On the Grade Crossing Federal Aid Program, Texas is fifth, with 33% not under contract as compared to 61% for all states.
When it is considered that allotments to a majority of the states are much smaller than to Texas, and the same time allowed to place projects under contract, it appears that the Texas Highway Department is maintaining its reputation as one of the best in the nation.

MISS JULIA MANN HONORED

The lovely home of Mrs. L. A.
Stiegler in Hondo was the setting for a charmingly appointed shower tea, from 2:30 to 6:30 Sunday afternoon, June 30, honoring Miss Julia Mann, a bride of this week.
Hostesses were Mesdames L. A.
Stiegler, Edgar Stiegler, Clark Ton-dre of San Antonio, George Zuercher of LaCoste, Otis Laughinghouse, Herman Vogel of Lake Buchanan, Milton Hagelein, and Henry Stiegler, and Miss Lenora Mann and Miss Ethelyn Ney of San Antonio.

Shasta daisies were used throughout the home as floral motif. In the living room, where Mrs. L. A.
Stiegler, the honoree, Miss Mann, and her mother, Mrs. Desra Mann, received the guests, floor baskets of the chosen flowers flanked the fireplace. Vases of the daisies decorated the gift rooms and the dining room, where the lace-covered tea table held an attractive centerpiece of the white blossoms in a crystal bowl and lighted yellow tapers in crystal holders.

Miss Lenora Mann was in charge of the bride's book and Miss Mary Adele Bader greeted the guests at the entrance to the dining room.
Mrs. Edgar Stiegler, Mrs. Henry Stiegler, Mrs. Herman Vogel and Miss Ethelyn Ney served the refreshments which consisted of sandwiches, cake squares iced in yellow, yellow and white mints, and punch. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Otis Laughinghouse and Mrs. Clark Tondre.

Greeting guests in the gift rooms were Mrs. George Zuercher, and Misses Geraldine Stiegler, Betty Jean Bader and Catherine Wagner.

The honoree wore a pretty street frock of moss green sheer crepe and a corsage of white carnations. White carnations also formed the corsages worn by Mrs. L. A. Stiegler, in a dress of wisteria crepe, and Mrs.
Desra Mann, whose costume was navy blue. The other members of the house party wore street dresses in cool summer colors and corsages of Shasta daisies.

Over one hundred guests called.
Miss Mann became the bride of Mr. Harold Stiegler in San Antonio, Wednesday, July 3, 1940, an account of which will be given in next week's paper. They will reside in their new five-room cottage recently built at Mr. Stiegler's dairy farm a few miles east of Hondo.

SCHWEERS REUNION

The seventh annual Schweers family reunion was held at Wernette's Garden in Castroville Sunday, June 23, with a very large crowd in attendance. The morning program was devoted to a short religious service conducted by the Rev. W. B.
Wheeler of the New Fountain Methodist Church. At noon a basket picnic lunch was spread beneath the shade of the huge trees. After all had eaten to the utmost of their capacity a photographer took a picture of the assembled group.

At two o'clock the group joined in an informal sing-song of German songs led by Mr. Schweer Saathoff of San Antonio, with Mrs. Roy Schweers of San Antonio as pianist.
Following this, a clarinet solo by Miss Dorothy Brock of San Antonio was enjoyed. A double quartet composed of Messrs. Benj. Wiemers, Fritz Senne, Edgar Stiegler, Henry Lindeburg, and Mrs. Robt. Riff, Mrs.
Henry Lindeburg, Mrs. Elmo Rahe, and Mrs. Andrew Schweers, sang several selections.

During the business session which followed new officers were elected as follows: Chairman, Benj. G.
Wiemers; vice-Chairman, Schweer Saathoff; Secretary-Treasurer, Marvin Schweers; directors, Mrs. Ben Gerdes, and Messrs. Edgar Stiegler, Schweer Saathoff, Clarence F.
Schweers, Fritz Bohmfalk and Wilkes Kothmann.

Candy and balloons were given to all children who participated in various races. Quite a number of new additions to the family by marriage and by birth were introduced.

The family tree which was drawn by Clarence Schweers was again displayed.

BRIDGE TOURNAMENT PRE-LIMINARIES OVER

Tuesday night, July 2, saw the fourth and final bout of the Lions Club bridge tournament, with twelve players still in the running. Mrs. Ed Cameron was highest for the four contests with a score of 19,140.
Winner, however, for the night's round was Mrs. C. D. Sadler with a score of 6,530. The twelve players, named according to their ranking scores, are: Mrs. Ed Cameron, Miss Thelma Lynch, Dr. H. J. Meyer, Mrs. N. C. Johnson, Mrs. C. D. Sadler, Mrs. J. B. Dixon, Hugh Meyer, Mrs. Volney Boon, Mrs. J. L. West,
Mr. J. B. Dixon, Mrs. A. H.
Schweers and Mr. C. D. Sadler.

The semi-finals will be played next Tuesday night, July 9, with the above twelve taking part. The finals will be played the following Tuesday night, July 16, with the eight highest of the above group taking part. Grand prize winner will be determined by the total of scores from both the semi-final and the final bouts.

"NAZI SPY" HAS BLITZKRIEG SOCK

All over this war-torn world, both in the belligerent and neutral nations, the phrase "fifth column" brings a feeling of dread.
In keeping with this keen interest, Warner Bros. have brought back that unforgettable film, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy", with newer and more powerful facts.

It's the patriotic duty of every American to see this film. Here, in the one country where it is still possible, everyone should learn how the fifth column works. "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" exposes their methods.
It tells you who gives them their orders—who pays them—what they are after—and most important of all —what you can do to combat this deadly menace.

Leon G. Turrou, former G-man, acted as technical advisor for the outstanding film.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN TO HAVE FREE CLINIC

Greatly encouraged by the fact that a total of 54 children, many of them thought to be hopelessly crippled for life, have been given a new outlook on life as the result of hospitalization received after being examined in the diagnostic clinic conducted here two years ago, officials of the Bi-County Health Unit at Uvalde and other interested organizations and agencies increased their efforts this week in making preparations for the second clinic to be held at the First Baptist Church here on Friday, July 26th.

This number of children have been sent to hospitals throughout the State in the past two years, and a total of 73 have received hospitalization since the Crippled Children's program was initiated here in 1935.
Many who were thought at the time to be hopelessly crippled, have received medical and surgical treatment so that today many of them are able to lead normal lives without the handicap of afflictions.

Doctor E. C. Bourdon, Director of the Bi-County Health Unit, which is sponsoring the second clinic here, announced this week that five of the most noted specialists in the South will conduct the Clinic. Four of them, all orthopedic specialists, were here two years ago and those in charge of the Clinic feel that they are fortunate to again obtain their services.

The four include Dr. Joe Foster of Houston, Dr. J. W. N. Eggers of Galveston, Dr. Walter Stuck and Dr.
Peter Keating, both of San Antonio.
It was also announced that this year Dr. Chas. W. Tension of San Antonio, widely-known plastic surgeon, would be here for examination of cases where plastic surgery might be needed.

Physicians and surgeons throughout the entire area are cooperating, the Nine-County Medical Association, composed of physicians and surgeons in that number of counties, having been the agency that requested that the clinic be held here.
Also cooperating are the Uvalde County Crippled Children's Committee, the Uvalde Chamber of Commerce and the Lions and Rotary clubs of the City. The Clinic is sponsored by the Crippled Children's Division of the State Department of Education with J. J. Brown as Director. Mr. Brown will also be back to Uvalde for the second Clinic.

Uvalde was selected as the site for the Clinic because of its central location. Every effort will be made, however, to bring Crippled children here from the nine counties in this area, including Zavala, Dimmitt, Maverick, Val Verde, Kinney, Medina, Real, Frio and Uvalde counties.
Officials have stressed that there will be no charge for any of the examinations. They also have asked for the cooperation of every individual and organization in locating any crippled child which might be examined. Within the past few weeks 14 such cases have been located in Uvalde County and listed as not previously having received hospitalization. —Uvalde Leader-

MRS. EMILIA LEINWEBER

Mrs. Emilia Leinweber died suddenly at her home in Hondo in the early afternoon of Friday, June 28, 1940. She had been a sufferer of high blood pressure but death came unexpectedly and as a great shock to family and friends. She was buried Sunday afternoon by the side of her late husband, Fritz J. Lein-weber, Sr., in the family plot in Oakwood cemetery. Rev. W. S. Highsmith, pastor of the local Methodist church, conducted the services both at the Horger funeral chapel and at the grave. The Methodist choir sang several appropriate selections.
The pallbearers were J. G. Barry, Emmett Nester, J. M. Finger, John Schweers, Ben Oefinger and Elmer Leinweber.

The deceased was born on March 15, 1877, and was the daughter of the late Henry and Anna Ellebracht.
She spent the first ten years of her life at Fredericksburg, Texas, moving to Hondo with her mother in 1887 where she has since resided.
In August 1900, she was married to Fritz J. Leinweber, Sr., who preceded her in death by some twenty-eight years. Four children were born to their union all of whom survive their parents. They are: Alvin Lein-weber of Shreveport, Louisiana; Wesley Leinweber of San Antonio;
Fritz J. Leinweber Jr., and Mrs.
Hedwig Windrow, both of Hondo.
Two grandchildren, Dorothy Lein-weber and John Robert Windrow, also survive. Besides her children and grandchildren, she also mourned by three sisters, Mrs. Anna Schweers, Mrs. Lena Weiss and Mrs. Martha Grube, and three brothers, Louis, Henry and Richard Ellebracht.

She had reached the age of 63 years, three months and thirteen days at the time of her demise. During these long years she had been a consistent member of the Methodist church, having united with it at an early age. A good woman in all her relations in life, she numbered her friends by all who knew her, and the sorrow of her bereaved family is shared by them all.

NATIVE OF D'HANIS DEAD

Miss Rosa Grosenbacher, 90, died Sunday, June 30, 1940, at the home of her niece, Mrs. Lena Diedenfeld, 223 Nolan Street, San Antonio. She was a native of D'Hanis and lived in San Antonio 70 years. She is survived by several nieces and nephews.
Services were held Monday afternoon, Rev. John A. Scherzer officiating.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs.
Emelia Leinweber wish to extend their heartfelt thanks and appreciation to their kind friends, relatives and neighbors, for the acts of kindness, messages of consolation and beautiful floral tributes received in their sad bereavement in the loss of their beloved mother. We especially thank the Rev. W. S. Highsmith.

I didn't explain about Mr. Braxton. My meeting him was pure coincidence of course. But it looked amazingly like pure fate; and I didn't dare to tell about it. I just said that a kind policeman had turned me loose and let it go at that.

But I thought about him a lot and kept hoping that he would call. But he didn't. The days dragged by without my seeing a sign of him. Come to think of it, so very many of them didn't drag by, after all; it was their drabness and not their number that troubled me. I wanted to see Mr. Braxton so bad that a day seemed a week, especially as I couldn't help fearing that he had found me out—had found out that I wasn't a poor relation—and that he didn't intend to come back at all. As I had told Fred, this business of really worthwhile poor men fighting shy of rich girls is pretty hard on the girls. Look at the kind of crops most of them have to put up with just because real men keep away. And for the matter of that, there's a lot of nonsense in all that talk about rich men wanting other rich men for their daughters. They don't want sons-in-law who look on marriage as a lifeboat, or who can't make good in one way or another; but I never heard of a single father—and I've had mighty good chances to hear—would have hesitated to welcome a would-be son-in-law just because he was poor. I know Dad wouldn't.

Meanwhile, Mr. Paul was in and out, talking with dad, mostly about that missing one thousand shares, which he seemed unable to trace. He said very little to me; but what he did say was nice and friendly. It made me feel pretty mean. But, goodness, I couldn't marry the man just because he was taking my refusal to marry him so nicely! At last, however, he got in bad with me, and after that I felt better. He came to the house one evening while Josephine and I were entertaining Fred in the parlor. I was looking in the big glass over the fireplace (which served as a very good periscope), and I saw him pass the door, on his way to Dad's room. An hour later, after he had gone, Dad sent for Josephine, and she left me and Fred in the parlor and went to the library. She was gone for so long that Fred grew restless and wanted to leave. He thought, poor boy, that Father was keeping Josephine away as a hint that it was time to close up the house for the night; and I could scarcely persuade him to stay. I succeeded, however; and it was well that I did for by and by Josephine came back and said that Father wanted to see Fred.

When Fred had gone to the library I put Josephine through the third degree; and after a lot of hard work, I found out what it was all about. Father had told her not to tell me, but I got it out of her. That is, I got some of it out of her. I thought I got it all, but in that I was fooled. Josephine played it low down on me that time—and it wasn't the first time either, as I discovered later.

No! Josephine did not tell me all that father had said but she told me enough to make me very angry.

Mr. Paul, it seemed, had heard somewhere, not about that fight (that would have been the limit) but about Josephine's and my expeditions with Fred. He had reported the facts to Father, and he had added that people were saying that Fred and I were getting too fond of each other and ought to be kept apart. Father had been astonished and had sent for Josephine to ask about it. Josephine had confessed to the expeditions, but she had been flustered by the report about Fred and me. She told Father that she had never suspected it. So Father sent for Fred to ask him about it.

This made me hopping mad. It was like asking Fred his intentions—as if Fred's intentions mattered! Father ought to have known that my intentions were the only ones of consequence. I flared up when Josephine told me, and I guess I said some mean things about Mr. Paul—conscientious old idiot! Even as I said them I was ashamed.

After I had quieted down again Josephine wanted to know whether it was true about Fred.

I told her what Fred had said on that horseback ride and how I had tried to encourage him to resume later and how I had failed. Josephine didn't say much; Josephine never does say much; but I could see that she was relieved.

About this time I heard the front door shut; a minute or so later I discovered that Fred had shut it. He had come from Father's den and had gone straight out of the house without stopping to say good-night to Josephine and me.

There was only one explanation that I could see; and that was that Father had insulted him—had ordered him out of the house, most probably. The injustice of the thing made me hopping mad, and I went straight to Father's room to have it out with him.

But he wouldn't let me in. He called through the locked door that he was too busy to see me and that I must wait till tomorrow. So I waited; I knew enough not to butt my head against a stone wall; and Father can be the stoniest sort of stone wall on occasion.

As a matter of fact I didn't see Father the next day, nor for several days after that. He left for Washington that same midnight and didn't get back till the end of the week. Meanwhile, Fred did not call again, and I got madder than ever. On Friday I called up the office and found that Father had just gotten back; and I went straight down town to see him.

At the door of his inner office I met Mr. Paul, also just going in. (I certainly do have rotten luck some times). And the next instant, before I could say "howdy do; good by" Father appeared in the door of the office. And with him, of all persons in the world, was Fred.

It was really queer how it happened. Father glanced at Mr. Paul and me and then turned back to Fred and positively roared at him. "Not a word more! Your conduct has been outrageous. Don't dare to put your foot in this office again." Fred looked thunderstruck. Then he gulped and started to speak. Then he apparently decided not to. He just went away. He didn't even speak to me; he just bowed and went.

The next minute Father turned to me. "Hello, Edith!" he said. "Glad to see you. Come inside, and let's have it out." Then he glanced at Mr. Paul. "Paul," he said, "you'll excuse me for a few minutes, I know, while I talk to Edith. That young jackanapes of a reporter has irritated me more than anyone has dared to do for years."

Of course Mr. Paul said he'd excuse him; and Dad took me on into his office and shut the door. No doubt he had something very important to say, but if he did, I beat him to it.

"Father," said I, "I came to tell you something. You'll be happy to hear it, because you suggested it. Otherwise I'm sure I should never have thought of it. I'm in love with Fred James."

I stopped. I was scared for a moment. This was carrying the war into Africa with a vengeance; and I was afraid that father might have applied. But I needn't have worried. Father had had verbal bombs exploded under him before. "Good!" he said, without moving a muscle. "I was speaking to Josephine about it only a day or so ago."

This spoiled my game—and I guess I showed it. I hadn't acquired Dad-poker face then, though I was learning. Moreover, though I knew perfectly well that he was bluffing, his words set me against Fred. I was sorry for Fred, of course, if he had set his heart on me, but goodness, he wasn't the only one; there were others.

"Who told you, Father?" I asked in a desperate effort to conceal my dismay by speech.

"Oh, I scarcely know," replied my fond parent, meditatively. "I had been noticing it for some time, of course—noticing it for some time! Can you beat that?—but when Paul spoke of it—"

So it was Mr. Paul. I had known it, of course, but Father's confirmation made it certain. "Bother Mr. Paul!" I said petulantly.

"You can't!" replied Father. "He never gets bothered about anything. By the way, now that we've had our talk, let's have Paul in. I fancy he's in a hurry."

And before I could object Mr. Paul was in.

I stared at him as he came in. "Mr. Paul!" I exclaimed, sharply.

Mr. Paul came forward gravely. "Yes, Miss Edith?" he said. Either he didn't notice that I was mad or he didn't care or—Oh! What's the use? Sometimes I could get the best of Father, but try as I might I never got the best of Mr. Paul.

I was sure sometimes that he wasn't a real human being, but merely an incarnation of corporation law—smooth and polished and full of tricks.

"Well, Miss Edith?" he said, and stood waiting respectfully, as calm as if he hadn't known how I hated him.

"It isn't well," I snapped. "What do you mean by meddling in my affairs? How dared you tell father that I was in love with Fred James?"

Mr. Paul's eyes twinkled. "I could enter a plea of confession and avoidance," he said. (It was just like him to use words that he knew I didn't know; I made a mental note to look them up). "But you don't like technicalities, so I won't offer you any. I'll just own up and say I didn't mean anything and ask you to forgive me."

Of course there was nothing else for me to do. To refuse would have been ridiculous. Somehow he had put me in the wrong—no, he hadn't either. I'll say that for him. I had put myself in the wrong! He had had nothing to do with it. I would abase myself and—

But I didn't get a chance. I'm not slow in speaking—quite the opposite! And I didn't take half so long in deciding what to do as I've taken in writing it down. But somehow before I could begin to abase myself Mr. Paul had handed Father a sheaf of papers, had said that he would be at the office in the morning, or something like that, and had started for the door.

Then I turned to father.

But Father was ready, too. He didn't say a word about Mr. Paul, for which I blessed him—Father never did rub things in; he merely picked up the conversation where it had been broken off.

"Yes! I had noticed your growing affection for Fred for some time," he said, "and I had made up my mind to send you to Japan. I—"

"To Japan?" I screamed.

"Yes! I haven't any objections to Fred—none in the world. But you're really too young to marry. Edith, and a voyage to Japan will give you a chance to learn whether your love is true."

The worst thing about Father is that you never can tell whether he is joking or not. He says the most plausible false things and the most preposterous true ones in exactly the same tone of voice.

And what made me maddest, of course, was that I couldn't say a word—not after the way I had opened the argument.

"You will go, won't you?" finished Father.

I grinned mournfully. "I'll be delighted," I declared. "Perfectly delighted. I've always been crazy to go to Japan and—"

"Quite so," Father apparently considered the matter settled. "Run along then, and get ready. The steamer leaves Tuesday."

"Tuesday?" I screamed. "Next Tuesday? Three days from now?"

Father had begun to scan a paper. "Yes," he said, abstractedly. "The steamer. What do you call her? sails Saturday for Yokohama via Panama. I have engaged accommodations for you and Josephine and your Aunt Candice."

Now, about your allowance. Let's figure it out and—

"No, thank you!" Here at least I could win. "Just double it—above all expenses, of course; and I'll try to get along on it." With head high I walked toward the door.

Not Quite "Unknown"

President Wilson used to find pleasure in relating how he once had his special car sidetracked at Hannibal, Mo., so he could make a quiet pilgrimage to the monument, erected on the bluff, to Mark Twain. Unknown to the natives, he asked one of them if he remembered Tom Sawyer.

"Never heard of him," the Missourian made answer.

"Do you recollect Huckleberry Finn?" asked the President.

"Finn? Finn?" mused the native. "There was a family of Finns down the road apiece, but I don't think there was a Huckleberry among 'em."

"Do you happen to recall Faddin' head Wilson?"

"Oh, yes, sure; I voted for him twice, sir."—Wall Street Journal.

THE FEMALE

Never make love to a woman for she thinks you mean it and if you don't she thinks she is entitled to it.

Never talk of serious things for you will bore her, and if you talk in a kidding tone she calls you a fool.

If you kiss her she immediately slaps you and if you don't, why she is insulted.

Never kid her for she thinks you are complimenting her and if you are giving her some "soul talk" she swears that you are kidding her.

If you give her a box of chocolates, she feeds it to her cheese-hound and if you don't, she calls you a cheap-skate.

If you adore her, she tells you how brave your rival is, and if it is the opposite, she remarks at the beauty of your eyes.

THERE is no surer sign of care less writing than the abuse of "and which." "And which" can be used correctly, but even so it usually makes an awkward sentence. When used as in the following sentence it is not only incorrect but ridiculous, for what the writer is saying is that it was the bone that slunk off with its tail between its legs.

"We stumbled over a dog gnawing a bone, and a slunk off with its tail between its legs."

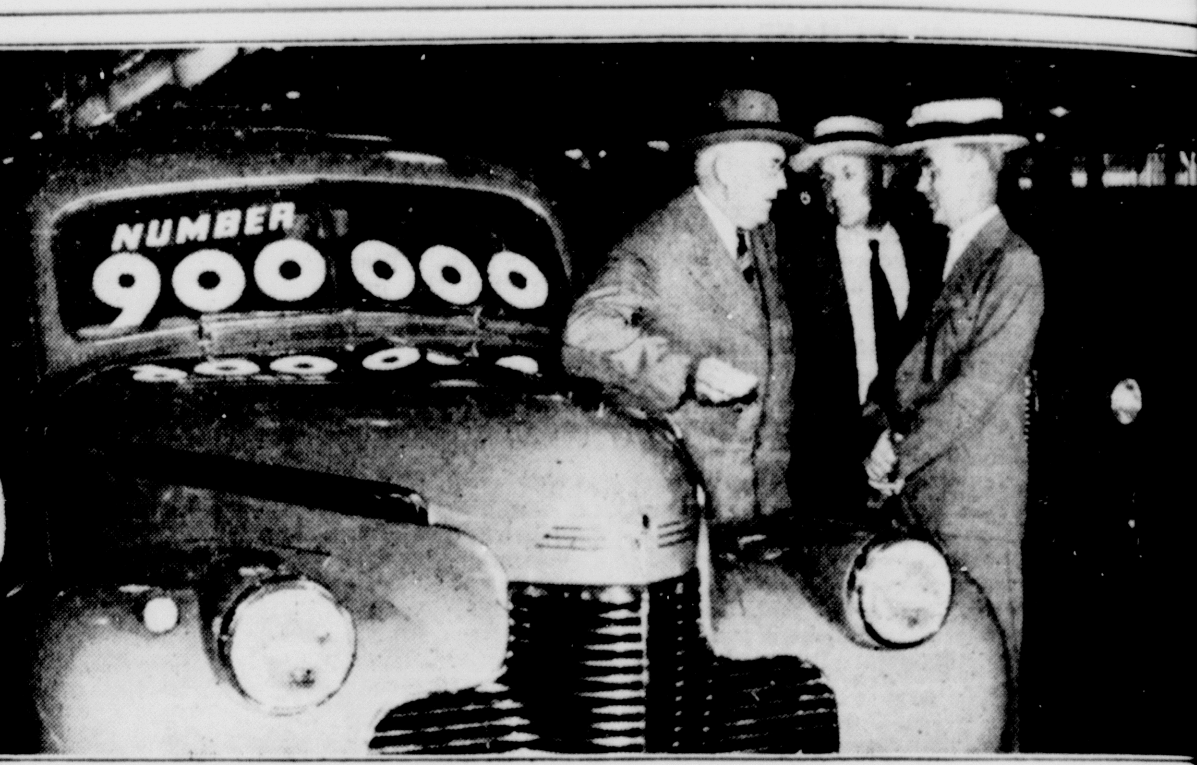

"Between" and "among" are often confused. The former should refer to two persons or things; the latter to more than two.

"The candy was divided between the two children."

"The candy was divided among the five children."

Chevrolet Builds Its 900,000th 1940 Car

Here is the 900,000th car of Chevrolet's 1940 model production, as it left the assembly line at Flint, Mich., June 12, less than one month after No. 800,000 was completed. Beside the car are M. E. Coyle, general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division (left), C. E. Wetherald, general manufacturing manager (right), and Arnold Lenz, assistant manufacturing manager, who were present in the plant when the car was produced.

"Chevrolet has built 300,000 cars in less than three months," Mr. Coyle pointed out. "The 600,000th of these models was built on March 21, the 700,000th on April 16, the 800,000th on May 13, and the 900,000th on June 12. This production rate closely parallels the consistently heavy sales volume since the introduction of the 1940 models last October, sales during March, April and May alone totalling 307,345."

The Price We Pay For Our Negligence

"Wilful waste makes woeful want."

Was it out of his vast store of wisdom that old Ben Franklin uttered that brief statement of bitter truth?

Or is it the dismal chorus of the countless millions that have at various times awakened too late to the inexorable fact that for their profligacy they must pay the price?

At any rate, the American people have been suddenly aroused, by developments in the war now raging in Europe, to the fact that they must pay the price for their heedless disregard of the palpable truth therein expressed.

In the presence of the potential danger to the safety of our own country that may attend the denouement of the conflict now desperately raging in Europe, we find ourselves woefully unprepared for meeting such a danger.

The editor of FARMING loves peace.

The very sight of war accoutrements—the concomitants of wholesale murder—are abhorrent to him.

And the most despicable of creatures is the aggressor in a war of conquest and invasion, wading through blood to grab a few filthy spoils.

But because there are mad men in this world who will provoke wars that they may climb to places of power or wealth over the rotting bodies of mothers' sons, wisdom prompts a sensible people to keep prepared to meet aggression with a defense equally skilled and equally well equipped.

However repulsive this means may be, safety lies in no other course.

Look at poor old China—helpless in the inertia of her own untrained, unprepared, self-complacent numbers!

FARMING, while yielding to none a greater love for peace or hate for war, has answered, aforetime, its pacifist friends with this statement:

"So long as there are bullies among the nations of the world safety lies alone in keeping your powder dry and your trigger finger supple."

America has not done that.

In fact, soon after the first world war, we did what amounted to throwing our gun away, and entering into a sort of fool's agreement not to make any more.

When the Harding administration stumbled into a stupid agreement with others as dumb, or more cunningly intentioned, to destroy certain perfectly good warships and to limit both the number and the efficiency of those to be built later, this paper protested to its utmost against our adherence to any such "entangling alliance".

Succeeding administrations, even including that of the New Deal, have done nothing to rectify the stupid blunder.

Now we wake up with an attack of

By THE EDITOR

OUR FLAG:—

May she ever in triumph wave Guarded by the true and the brave!

the jitters to a realization that our navy is grossly inadequate to meet the needs that circumstances are liable at any minute to impose upon it.

Instead of opening our marts to an exchange of commodities with all the world, thereby building up a commercial shipping that would cover the seven seas, give employment to thousands of men in manning the ships, and furnish trained seamen for meeting any emergency calling for their skill, we have choked the life out of such enterprise with a tariff wall around our country; and the ships we had preserved that have not been kept afloat by a subsidy—that perfidious act of taking from him who has to give to him who hasn't earned—have been, for the most part, permitted to rot at their piers, the nesting places for barnacles of both the briny sea and of the murky waters of politics.

And though the fathers of the policy were practically swept clean from places of power by the tide that brought into their places the New Dealers, the said New Dealers have dared touch this great problem in only a few spots, a la Hull's trade pact—a plan that because it operates only in spots hurts some one every time it helps some one else.

Fortune favors a virile people.

Look at the contrast in Europe today.

Emerging from the war of 1914-18 claiming the most of the glory achieved by her allies, England went soft both physically, mentally and morally on the dole—that strange hallucination that the frugal must GIVE of their stores to feed the profligate in their idleness.

When the emergency of armed conflict arose, England finds herself dependent on a standing army made soft by the laziness of army post life and an officer personnel that had been more interested in social and political advancement than in keeping abreast of military progress.

A Clear Case of Hysteria

I see no use for the people to get all worked up over the war situation and have a case of hysterics. Nothing we can do about it at this late date will materially change the result. We cannot equip armies, build airplanes and battle ships in time to help the allies in this war, but possibly might get ready to help in the next war.

This thing of going "hog wild" over a situation that we should have been prepared for long ago is all nonsense. We should go along in a normal business-like way to make the necessary preparation and not be forced into the necessity of paying double prices for material and labor. That is what we will face if we undertake to rush preparedness.

If we expect to help the allies, as we did in 1917, that help is needed now and not two or three years hence. We can sell them airplanes and such things as can be used at once, as we are doing on a cash and carry basis. We could let them have our army planes and navy planes and other equipment that could be used at once, as we will not have any use for them in several years. It will take

Germany several years to recover sufficiently from this war to start another one, and we would take no risk in letting the allies have all our planes.

If Germany wanted to invade this country she could not transport large armies three thousand miles from the base of operations and ever succeed in conquering the United States. Germany has sense enough to know this, if she is gloating over her own power.

We have such a case of hysteria that we may not act with cool and deliberate judgment. We are talking about coalition cabinets and turning everything over to the President and every body else get out of his way and let him run things. This would be an act of folly. We are not in war and may not be, and if we were in war, there are any number of men as able and capable as the President, and much safer in judgment. We have granted far too much power to the Chief Executive for our own good already.

GEO. B. TERRELL,
Alto, Texas.

On the other hand, her traditional enemy only a few miles away, burning with resentment and thirsting for revenge, out of the humiliation of her frustration has built up a war machine in the last twenty years that is unparalleled in history for its equipment and efficiency.

Instead of depending upon a few professional soldiers, every man is a soldier in Germany; to whip her, her enemies must do more than whip "her army"; their "armies" must whip her whole nation.

Men capable of looking beyond their satisfaction with a Saturday night's handout of a dole or an invitation to Mrs. Society's Thursday pink tea should have been seeing the course of events, been able to evaluate their inevitable consequences and been preparing for them.

Verily, we pay for wilful waste with woeful want!

And whose course have we in America been emulating?

Look at the army of government dependents of one kind and another swarming about you on every hand.

Listen to the jittery wails over unpreparedness welling up from those very ones whose duty it has been to keep this country abreast of the demands of the perilous times in which we live.

Contemplate the vast debt we have incurred in fruitless experiments at solving the problems of want by killing cattle, plowing up cotton and burning wheat; bonding unborn generations to support people in idleness or nonproductive labor; and nameless numbers of boondoggling wastes, while the preservation of our surplus against the day of want, the building up of means of self-defense and the fostering of a healthy morale have been openly scorned or shamelessly neglected.

Then answer for yourself.

Will we arise to the full stature of the rights and duties of sovereign citizens of a free republic, the heritage bequeathed us by the founding fathers, and quit the course we have been beating towards ruin; see that sound policies are restored, that a leadership is secured that can be trusted for a faithful adherence to traditional principles, and that the morale of our people is not allowed to be destroyed by uncertainty and mistrust?

The times and the occasion demand men of strong moral fiber and unquestioned integrity of principle and purpose—such as distinguished the founding fathers.

Washington fought and won the Revolution on an expense account, spurned a proffered crown and set the sacred precedent of handing his commission of leadership back to the sovereign people before tainting it with the suspicion of any aim at dictatorship.

Waste our right of manhood sovereignty and we will pay in a woeful want of liberty.

THE WEAK AND THE STRONG.

The local printer did a job of printing and got five dollars for it. The printer took the money and paid the grocer, the grocer paid the butcher, the butcher paid the doctor, the doctor paid the banker and the money kept on changing hands until someone dropped it into the contribution box at church and then it started doing missionary work. GROUPS AIDED BY NEW DEAL SWING BEHIND THIRD TERM.

Culmination of the present trend toward centralization of power in the hands of the Federal Government is seen by some observers in the formidable support swinging behind the third-term movement for President Franklin D. Roosevelt. For, it is pointed out, greatest support for this violation of 150 years of American tradition comes from government employees and those groups who have received aid from the New Deal.

Many additional bureaus have been created by the Federal Government in recent years—more than at any time in the history of the Government. It is believed many of the

RECENT BRIDE HONORED

Mrs. Louis Bendele entertained with a miscellaneous shower from two to five o'clock Sunday, June 30, at St. Louis Hall in honor of her sister, Mrs. Alfred Bitzkie, a recent bride.

Several games of bunco were played and prizes awarded to the winners.

Delicious chicken sandwiches, cookies, muffins iced in pink, iced tea and coffee were served by Mesdames Louis Bendele, Jul. Jagge, and Fred Jagge, and Misses Ellen Marie, Mabel and Betty Burrell and Ethel Jagge. The colors, pink, green and yellow and white were carried out in the decorations and table appointments. Multi-colored mints served as plate favors.

Prior to the entrance of the honoree, Miss Isabel Karm sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied at the piano by Miss Betty Burrell.

The honoree entered the hall to the strains of "Lohengrin" played by Miss Betty Burrell at the piano. Little Misses Beverly Ann and Marilyn Haby, dressed in green and white pinafore dresses, escorted the honoree to her place of honor on the stage.

The steps and railing of the stage were lovely in their decorations of white, pink, green and yellow crepe paper. Vari-colored zinnias in tall vases were placed near the railing of the stage. Crepe paper in the colors of white, pink, green and yellow draped from corner to corner and tied in the center decorated the stage. A table, laid with white cloth, in the center of the stage held the gifts.

A bowl of zinnias and Queen's crown were placed on the piano and at the table on which the bride's book was placed.

Miss Bernice Karm gave a toast to the honoree and she was assisted with the gifts by her sister, Mrs. Louis Bendele, and Misses Ethel Jagge, Bernice Karm, Ellen Marie and Mabel Burrell. Miss Betty Burrell entertained the guests with several piano selections.

The honoree was attired in a navy blue sheer dress with white lace trim and white accessories and wore a corsage of white roses. The hostess and those assisting in hostess' duties wore corsages of roses and pink carnations.

Miss Ethel Jagge was in charge of the bride's book in which forty-one guests registered.

Officials and employees of these new agencies and groups created "financial aid look to a continuation of the present administration for perpetuation of their jobs and benefits."

Regardless of how wisely and prudently President Roosevelt would use third term, there is growing sentiment that to break precedent in this case could easily pave the way for future abuse of power. Any regime that could centralize the government to a large degree would automatically create a bureaucratic dictatorship that could perpetuate itself in office through sheer numbers.

A third term, even under present world conditions, is considered by many a dangerous concentration of power. But even more dangerous is the fact that a tradition that has kept the Government free from one man control since its beginning will have been shattered.—Scottish Rite News Bureau.

"Sure, they're Government checks," says a public papsucker via a job with the Social Security Board, discussing the Social Security benefits. "But just like the money the worker puts into any insurance company, it's his money and HIS EMPLOYER'S MONEY that runs the show. It's his money coming back to protect his family in his old age or when he dies." How any one is simple enough to call the money mulcted from the employer to afford government insurance for the employee the "employer's money" is beyond our comprehension. Anybody who has ever met a payroll for long knows that the employer earns all he gets or else one of two things happens: he loses his job for inefficiency or the employer goes broke for lack of profitable returns, and both are out of a job. It can't be otherwise. Therefore, all that goes into the social security funds comes out of labor's earnings. If labor was wise it would prefer to manage its own insurance business and would resent to the utmost limit this coercive imposition of paternalism.

NATURAL RESOURCES IN ALL COUNTIES OF STATE TO BE SURVEYED AND CATALOGUED

By Al Harting

For the first time in history, Texas' natural resources, those that are being exploited and the countless others in which lie this state's hopes for an industrialized, progressive future, will be catalogued, county by county, and published in book-form under a plan announced this week by Judge John M. Spellman of Dallas, president of the Texas Institute of Natural Resources and Industrial Development.

Under terms of a contract made by Judge Spellman for the Institute with Newspaper Features of Texas, a special newspaper advertising and news gathering organization with offices in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio, a trained personnel will be placed in the field immediately and Texas' 254 counties will be surveyed with a fine-toothed "scientific comb."

Working in close cooperation with Chambers of Commerce, city and county government officials and schools and colleges, the data-compilers will expend exhaustive efforts in assembling for the first time in history a definitive, accurate list of the Lone Star state's natural resources and the roles they are capable of playing in the "Texas of Tomorrow."

Findings for each county will be published in a newspaper in that county and the Institute will retain them as a permanent file for the information of those interested in inspecting this state's possibilities as sites for great plants, manufacturing concerns or supply bases.

Alex Brandau, executive manager of Newspaper Features of Texas, and Judge Spellman, following a conference in Dallas, said "We feel this will be the greatest forward step that has yet been taken to place the marvelous resources of Texas before the public and to hasten the investment of money in their development."

"It has, unfortunately, been true in the past, that if a man came to Texas from other sectors of the nation, interested in some specific natural resource, he could find no central agency capable of furnishing him with accurate data."

"The result has been that, either he had to traverse wide ranges of territory and get the information for himself or, as was usually the case, abandon the idea entirely."

"Millions of dollars have been lost to the State as a result of this condition."

"It has been the intention of the Institute since its organization to secure and prepare this data. We have only now been able to put the plan into operation. I hope that the far-seeing citizens in all counties will give their full cooperation to Newspaper Features in the forthcoming survey."

The Institute will be furnished with 50,000 copies of each survey printed in each of the county newspapers. The reports from the various counties will be compiled into a large volume and, according to Judge Spellman, will be placed in college and university libraries throughout the nation. Also, he revealed, they will be put in the hands of great industrialists and financiers who have expressed interest in Texas but who, because of the lack of reliable data, have been hampered in their desire to extend their organizations or influence into this territory.

According to reliable figures compiled by the government, $280,000,000 in industries came South—but of that amount, only $6,000,000 was established in Texas.

Both Mr. Brandau and Judge Spellman agreed that the natural resources volume would, for the first time, provide a medium for national advertising of the State of Texas.

"Texas is the only state in the union which does not point out its advantages and possibilities in an advertising program," Mr. Brandau said.

"For that reason, because of this shortsighted negligence, we have suffered and lagged a bit behind the times."

But wide circulation of the reports of our survey inevitably will focus the eyes of important individuals and concerns on this state.

"We are confident that publication of our findings will be followed by an accelerated flow of new money, new ideas and new progress past the Texas borders."

Courty reports not only will list known natural resources found in that locality but will, also, include vital data on transportation facilities, power sources and other information important to prospective manufacturers.

Judge Spellman Saturday cited an excerpt from the Texas Weekly in which Pale Miller wrote:

"Sleeping beneath the earth in the far-flung hinterlands of Texas are natural riches plethoric in number and fantastic in diversity. One Texas county—Culbertson—is larger than Delaware and Rhode Island combined and has a population of only 2,228; yet within its borders can be found marble, copper ore, pure silver ore, lead and zinc ore, cinnabar, and many other minerals. Llano County, with only 5,500 people occupying nearly 1,000 square miles of land, has known resources of opaline granite, iron, amphibole, asbestos, feldspar, and dozens of others. Burnet county, whose largest city has only 1,000 people, has abundant deposits of graphite, granite, copper, lead, ichthyol, and others. Lampasas has laurite, basic mineral in the manufacture of aluminum, and the extent of this resource has not been determined."

"All over Texas the story is the same. Texas has more than 800 kinds of building stone. No one knows where the next oil field will be discovered. No one knows what effect industrial chemistry will have on agriculture and forestry."

"No one knows what new mineral will be unearthed or where. No one knows a tenth of what there is to learn about Texas."

"But the Texas Institute of Natural Resources and Industrial Development is going to make a determined effort to find out.

"Too much, of course, should not be expected of its work. Miracles will not attend its path. Industrially, Texas is still the most rugged of frontiers and its boundaries seem as distant as the horizons themselves. There is a gigantic task to be accomplished, one that staggers the imagination, and obstacles must be met and resolutely overcome."

"There is only one word to describe the program ahead. It is big. It is to be hoped that it receives the support it seeks. Of the average citizen of Texas it asks only a sympathetic understanding of its work. An investment of faith today will return dividends of progress across the years ahead."

KOCH-BURGER

Miss Clara Bell Burger, daughter of Mrs. Henry Burger and the late Mr. Burger of Upper Hondo, and Flovi F. Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koch of Hondo, were united in marriage at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, July 2, 1940, at the Hondo Methodist Church. Rev. W. S. Highsmith officiated at the ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of the couple.

The bride was attended by Miss Pauline Holland of Victoria, a cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Koch was served by the bride's brother, Stanley Burger, as best man.

The bride wore a pretty dress of dusty pink crepe and black and white accessories. Miss Holland wore rose knobby linen with white accessories.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Koch left on a brief bridal trip to San Antonio. On their return they will be at home temporarily with the bridegroom's parents in Hondo.

Mrs. A. J. Boog and daughter Carmen, spent the week-end at Austin with relatives. They were accompanied home by Charles Boog who had been in that city on a visit of several weeks.

SOCIAL CLUB

Mrs. C. J. Reinhart, member, and Miss Grace Zinsmeyer, guest, held high scores. Miss Lucy Roth cut high, and Mrs. R. R. Carle held low. Delicious chicken salad, saltines, potato chips, cake, and iced tea were served to Mesdames Charles Finger, Will Nehr, O. J. Reinhart, R. R. Carle, Louis Carle Jr., Alfred Zinsmeyer, Alfred Rath; Misses Josie, Lucy, and Ethel Rothe, Grace Zinsmeyer, and Cornelia Koch.

RECENT BRIDE HONORED

Mrs. Otis Neuman, formerly Miss Pauline Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schmidt, was honored with a miscellaneous shower in the D'Hanis High School Auditorium Saturday afternoon, June 29. The hostesses were Mrs. Charles Marshall, Mrs. Joe Rieber, Mrs. George Zybura, Miss Hulda Nester, and Miss Annie Schmidt. Delicious chicken salad sandwiches, watermelon, and iced tea were served.

COUNTRY WOMEN

Just like butterflies they hover. Passing snow white flaky bread. To go with aromatic butter. Yellow from the clover, fed—Passing jam made from the red fruit. That adorns the hillside tree. Passing homemade pickles, fragrant. As the winds of Araby; Country women have a way. Of tempting those who come to visit. And their gingham dresses rival Queen's attire, so rare-exquisite. —Margaret Schaffer Connelly.

NEWS!

FEDERAL EMERGENCY TAX PLACED ON BEER

THIS TAX IS $1.00 ADDITIONAL PER BARREL ABOVE THE PRESENT TAX OF $5.00 PER BARREL

GRAND PRIZE absorbs this additional tax of 8 cents per case on all packaged beer (both bottled and canned beer) without increasing the selling price. Bulk beer (keg) will be increased $1.00 per barrel.

GRAND PRIZE will continue to maintain the quality that justifies the statement:

"There Is No Finer Beer At Any Price!"
